

Entscheidungen treffen

German 301: Conversation and Composition

German 301 is an advanced language and literature course in which you will read and discuss a variety of contemporary texts and watch films. Throughout the course, we will discuss what decisions different people make and how those decisions influence their lives for better or worse. This course also provides advanced language learners with opportunities to strengthen their writing and speaking skills – while discussing engaging texts, such as Benjamin Lebert's novel Crazy or the Brothers Grimm's fairy tales.

Over the course of the semester, you will

- work toward improving your discussion skills in German;
- increase your active and passive vocabulary;
- review your command of German grammar with a particular emphasis on developing more sophisticated grammar rules.
- learn to read and interpret a wide array of fictional and non-fictional texts. Genres slated for discussion include: a novel, short stories, fairy tales, newspaper articles, and song lyrics.

Spring 2016
GERM 301.001 and 301.002
with Dr. Hess and Dr. Layne

Prerequisite: GERM 204 or permission of instructor

Connections: Communication Intensive, North Atlantic World

Germanic and Slavic
Languages and Literatures